The recommendations and health proposals provided by the Service and eDoc4u's hosting site (the Site) are for informational purposes only. As a participant in the Service, you assume full responsibility and risk for the appropriate application and use of your health information and for following any recommendations or accepting any health offers provided by the Service.

No information provided by the Service is intended to diagnose, treat, or follow up on any medical disease or condition, nor is it intended to replace an actual "hands-on" consultation with your qualified health care provider.

REMEMBER, THE SERVICE IS NOT A SUBSTITUTE FOR A COMPLETE MEDICAL EXAMINATION BY YOUR DOCTOR! ALWAYS CHECK WITH YOUR HEALTH CARE PROVIDER REGARDING ANY QUESTIONS OR CONCERNS THAT YOU HAVE REGARDING YOUR HEALTH. The Service does not create a doctor-patient relationship with you but simply strives to improve the doctor-patient relationships you have with your doctor or other health care providers by providing you with relevant medical information. eDoc4u assumes no liability whatsoever for the information provided or for any diagnosis or treatment made in reliance thereon.

The information available at the Site and provided through the Service is protected by applicable copyright and patent laws. As a participant, you may not reproduce, retransmit, distribute, disseminate, sell, publish, broadcast, or circulate any such information provided to you. This includes, but is not limited to, translation into foreign languages, storage on CD-ROM's, and any other use. You may, however, display, reformat, and print any information for your own personal, non-commercial purposes, and you may use your own health information for any purpose.

Due to the unpredictable nature of electronic transmission and distribution, there may be inaccuracies, omissions, and typographical errors in the provided information which are unknown to eDoc4u. We are committed to providing accurate information; however, the information may incorporate expert opinions and experienced medical judgments that eDoc4u has not developed and for which eDoc4u cannot be responsible.

eDoc4u cannot warrant the accuracy of information or suggestions provided by the Service.

Neither eDoc4u nor any of its parents, subsidiaries, affiliates, agents, licensees or service providers or their respective officers, directors, employees, agents, contractors or assigns shall be liable to you for any loss or injury caused in part or whole by situations beyond its control in procuring, compiling, interpreting, providing, and storing of your medical information or resulting from your reliance or the reliance of your healthcare provider upon the information provided by the Service.

You are responsible for safeguarding your password. All access to the Service and the Site using your password, and any data modifications to your records in connection with such access will be your responsibility and presumed to have been executed with your consent. eDoc4u reserves the right to modify, amend, restate, and/or terminate any or all of these Terms and Conditions at any time and to post any changes to the membership information area. It remains your responsibility, as a participant, to periodically review the membership information area. If you do not access the Service for a period of two years from registering for the Service, eDoc4u may archive or purge your information.

If any provision of these Terms and Conditions is deemed invalid, then the remaining provisions will continue in full force and effect. These Terms and Conditions, all intellectual property issues, and your rights and obligations shall be governed by the laws of the United States of America and the State of Tennessee. Any dispute you may have with eDoc4u or any of its parents, subsidiaries, affiliates, agents, licensees or service providers, or their respective officers, directors, employees, agents, contractors and assigns shall be resolved exclusively in the courts of Davidson County, Tennessee.

In order to use this Service, you must (i) be at least 18 years of age; and (ii) acknowledge that it is solely your responsibility to follow up with the appropriate medical provider for any medical services you think you need as a result of participating in the Service. It is your responsibility to review the Terms and Conditions from time to time to determine if any changes have been made.
